

Manufacturing's Weekly Insights

Predictions for Manufacturers in 2026

As manufacturers approach 2026, they'll need to balance agility with precision to overcome multiple challenges.

Prepare for What's Ahead

Russia's Grey-Zone Attacks Make Risk a Moving Target

U.S. companies with European operations face growing exposure to hybrid threats that test continuity, cybersecurity, and supply networks.

Key Vulnerabilities & Risk Sharing

CBAM in 2026:

Wednesday, November 26th 2025, 10:00 AM (GMT)
Who Will Pay and How Much?
Understand who's liable, when costs begin, and how to prepare.

PLUS:
A first look at CarbonChain's
CBAM Supplier
Catalogue.

Register Now

Rick Ogilvie
Product Manager

Robert Shook
Co-founder & CEO

Carbon
Chain

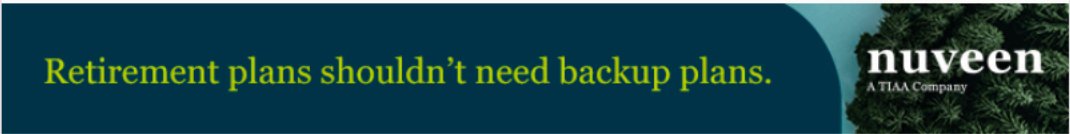

NEWSAnd More

Cyber Resilience and Business Impact in Manufacturing

Manufacturers face rising AI and supply chain threats, challenging business leaders to prioritize cyber resilience.

Strengthening Defenses

Blind Robots Cost Money: AI Vision Fixes It

How AI-powered 3D vision systems help robots adapt in real time, cutting downtime and tooling needs in modern factories.

Change is Constant

Could Modular be the Answer to Labor Shortages?

Within a complex and labor-squeezed infrastructure landscape, automation and modular construction could improve project outcomes.

Creating Value

Keep Your Team Safe Around Rotating Machinery

Want safer, more reliable operations? Explore 5 predictive maintenance methods that cut downtime and reduce safety risks.

Download the Whitepaper