

Pulling Back the Curtain on Capex Finance

Why the traditional equipment finance model often costs companies more than it should.

Access the Essential Guide today

Equipment-backed financing can be a highly cost effective and capital efficient tool however, the legacy market structure creates inefficiencies that add unnecessary costs and process complexity for businesses looking to access capital. At Clarus, we've made it our mission to (i) modernize the product by introducing increased flexibility and customization to better suite the company's needs and (ii) eliminate opaque process, pricing, and fees through our ability to provide up to $100M of capital on a direct, partnership lending basis

Our Essential Guide to Equipment Finance can serve as a playbook for companies seeking transparency and best execution for their capex financing needs
